Prader-Willi Syndrome (PWS) is a complex genetic disorder.

Mild or moderate intellectual disability with associated learning difficulties, behavioural and mental health problems.

Some physical, sensory, and communication impairments.

People with PWS have difficulty managing anxiety levels and are very stress-sensitive.

Confabulation (storytelling and fantasizing) and impulsivity are common PWS behaviours.

Most people with PWS have poor muscle tone and coordination.

Uncooperative behaviour may quickly escalate to major temper outbursts if not managed appropriately. Seek the advice of parent/carer regarding the behaviour, medical management strategies likely to achieve maximum cooperation.

Most people with PWS have a high pain threshold and poor temperature regulation.

People with PWS lack satiety. They are always hungry. There is often abnormal food-seeking behaviour.
